Excellence in Applied Child Welfare Research

New Scholars Award

International Competition

Illinois Child Welfare announces the second year of its international competition for new scholars in applied research in child welfare. The winning manuscript will be published in the 2009 issue of Illinois Child Welfare.

Manuscripts will be judged by a panel of three reviewers with multidisciplinary expertise using the following criteria:

- Originality,
- Depth of conceptual and theoretical background,
- Coherence of research design and thoroughness of data analysis,
- Recognition of biases and limitations,
- Applicability of findings and conclusions for improving child welfare practice.

Requirements for entry:

1. Authors must be students from any country and academic program who:

- Are just beginning the academic research and publication process (e.g., not more than 2 prior publications) and
- Are conducting applied research in a field contributing to child welfare practice (e.g., medicine, law, education, nursing, psychology, criminal justice, social work, etc.).

2. Submit a paper that summarizes research and findings:

- By June 1, 2008 and
- Following guidelines for authors of articles submitted to Illinois Child Welfare.

For authors for whom English is not a native language, reviewers will take this into consideration in evaluating manuscripts and assistance will be provided by the editorial staff when your manuscript is prepared for publication.

Please submit all manuscripts electronically or in hard copy (or both) to:

New Service For Authors: Track Your Manuscripts

Many changes for the editorial staff are making it possible to considerably streamline the review and decision process and establish a rapid process that will be transparent for authors (of course with the exception that all reviews remain double-blind). If you submit a manuscript to Illinois Child Welfare, starting January 5, 2007 you will be able to track the progress of your manuscript through the review process and, if your paper is published, all the way through the copy-editing stages to publication. You will be able to create a log-on id and password on the journal website, log-in and see when your paper is sent out for review, the decision of each reviewer with regard to acceptance, and the final decision about publication. Then, if your manuscript will be published, you will be able to track the scheduled date of publication and the editing process (reference check, copy-editing, formatting the manuscript including your bio and acknowledgments, and resubmitting the manuscript to you for your copyright permission).
